ANTI MALARIA FLUID AT GREAT DAM WINS VICTORY FOR HEALTH

Waters Empounded By the Dam Treated Chemically

EXPERIMENT IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Possible Epidemic Of Fever Checked By Health Unit

Fifteen hundred gallons of anti-malaria fluids, under high pressure, used daily on the waters now being empounded by Wilson Dam, are preventing what was about to become a serious malaria epidemic, there it became known here Monday.

The federal government, working in conjunction with the Alabama state board of health, furnished the anti-malaria oil, the machinery for the high pressure methods and the experts and workmen for the experiment.

It was declared here today by an official of the state board of health, that never before had the high pressure methods in distributing anti-malaria oil, been tried out on a large scale. With the results satisfactory so far, and with only a few weeks until frost may be reasonably expected it is believed that malaria has been defeated at Wilson Dam, just as malaria and dangerous fevers were defeated in the Panama Canal Zone and in Cuba.

Three engineers are attached to the Alabama state board of health, who work for the federal government and the state government, one of those engineers is N. H. Rector, stationed here, and the other two are E. B. Johnson at Birmingham and J. C. Carter at Mobile.

Engineer Rector has been in close touch with the malaria situation at Wilson Dam and will have direct oversight of the anti-malaria work there for some weeks, it is said.

Official reports show that for the year ending October 1 Alabama has had less malaria by over half than the state people suffered from it in the year 1923. State Epidemiologist Becker of Montgomery, and Dr. W. S. Welch, chairman of the state board of health, have made frequent visits to Muske Shoals in the last few months in connection with the anti-malaria fight made there.

COOLIDGE'S TALK STRESSES LIBERTY

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—The essence of freedom, President Coolidge told an audience of delegates to the Holy Name Society convention here Sunday, is "civil, political and religious liberty, as solemnly declared in the fundamental law of the land."

"Our constitution," he declared, "guarantees it fully, completely and adequately."

Mr. Coolidge then emphasized that the constitution also provides no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States. "I do not say, that we as citizens have always held ourselves to a proper observance of these standards toward each other," he continued, "but we have nevertheless established them and declared our duty to be obedient to them. This is the American ideal of ordered liberty under the law. It calls for rigid discipline."

The president went into a thorough exposition of his theory of American government in the address. The government, he said, was the result of an effort to establish institutions under which the people as a whole should have the largest possible advantages.

SUPERVISION FOR POULTRY INDUSTRY NEEDED IN AMERICA

Canadian Plan Should Be Studied Says Mrs. Forbes

A TEMPORARY UNIT IS FORMED

Local Poultry Fancier is Back From Trip To Toronto

"State and national supervision for the poultry industry, such as is exercised by the Canadian government, will be forced upon the people of the United States," according to Mrs. Florence Forbes of the Twin Cities, ranking member of the American Poultry Association, who as just returned from a northern trip, attending while away a several days convention of poultry organization officials at Toronto.

Mrs. Forbes is serving her fifth year as chairman of the executive council, judges section of the American poultry association, and is a licensed judge of poultry.

The poultry official stated that Canada's action is excluding American "chicks," unless their grade was fixed by government officials, and other rules of the Canadians, will force America to give official recognition to the poultry industry.

Mrs. Forbes stated that at Chicago, a temporary organization of poultry people of this country was formed, but that until the states came into the new organization as units, and until the federal government takes a hand, the Canadian poultry organization heads will not recognize the new poultry association.

Government Gives Dinner

At the expense of the Canadian government, a banquet was given during the Toronto poultry convention, which was attended by Mrs. Forbes and many other Americans. Mrs. Forbes stated that a high official of the Canadian government spoke at the banquet as an official and outlined the plans of the Canadian government for the promotion of poultry breeding and care.

Mrs. Forbes said that the whole object of national and state action was to standardize poultry products, and stabilize its price. She commended the poultry association work as planned.

WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNI WILL HELP DAVIS CANDIDACY

The formation of a Davis-Alumni Club has been announced here for the first time. The organization is made up entirely of men who are graduates or have attended Washington and Lee University with the purpose of pushing the name of John W. Davis forward for the presidency.

Mr. Davis is a graduate of the institution of the year of 1892 receiving his Bachelor of Arts Degree after three years of study. He then received his degree of LL.B. in the law school of the same university. After teaching as a member of the law faculty for some years Mr. Davis entered the practice of law and entered into the political arena where he has steadily driven toward the top where he now awaits the pleasure of the people to give him the highest honor possible in the United States today.

Daugherty Releases A 'Broadside' At Both Wheeler and Davis

(Associated Press)

ABOARD WHEELER SPECIAL. Enroute to Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 22—Gaston B. Means, investigator and star witness in the Daugherty inquiry whose repudiation of his own testimony was published Sunday, called Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, over long distance telephone last night and gave a startling version of that episode, Senator Wheeler announced today to correspondents travelling with him on his campaign tour.

"Means asked me to call the senate investigating committee together in order that he might present documentary evidence and personal testimony which would prove, he said, even grosser corruption in the executive department at Washington than was alleged in testimony before hearings last spring," Senator Wheeler declared.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 22—Miss Roxie Stinson, one of the senate committee's star witnesses in the investigation of the administration of Harry M. Daugherty, former United States attorney general, today characterized as "ridiculous" purported statements from Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, to the Attorney General in which Means repudiated his testimony.

Miss Stinson, former wife of Jesse Smith, whose name also figured conspicuously in the senate investigation denied statements contained in Means' repudiation, in which he declared that Miss Stinson, like himself had "given testimony inspired by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, prosecutor of the investigation," and denied that coercion had been used in obtaining her testimony.

"It is perfectly ridiculous," she said

THIRTY-THREE DEAD KNOWN STORM TOLL IN WISCONSIN BLOW

Scores Are Injured As State Is Swept By A High Wind

PROPERTY LOSS IS VERY HEAVY

Wire Communication Is Partially Interrupted By the Tornado

(Associated Press)

ST. CINCINNATI, Sept. 22—Partial restoration of wire communication today gradually increased the known toll of Sunday's storm in Wisconsin and at noon the casualty list stood at 33 dead and scores injured, with property damage large.

This toll was taken in several scattering sections, reports received here showed, while tangled wires continued to isolate some districts prompting the fear that other deaths might be reported when communication became normal.

Twenty one persons were reported killed in the western portion of Clark county, near Thorp, while other towns reporting deaths in their vicinity were Ashland, six dead; Couderay, two dead; Rhinelander, three dead, and Milwaukee one.

Reports of other fatalities in the district, with interrupted communication, added several persons to the death list, but pending re-establishment of telephone and telegraph communication, these reports could not be verified.

Local Hosiery Is Advertised Widely

A Twin City product in the shape of No. 17 hosiery yarn was advertised Saturday on a full page that cost $7,000, in one of the most widely read weekly magazines in the world. The Saturday display was made by the Cooper-Wells company of St. Joseph. Owners of the Albany Hosiery Mill. It was the third of a series of big advertisements placed lately by J. O. Wells, president and general manager of the Cooper-Wells company. Three of the large advertisements have cost exactly $7,000 each.

REV. OTEY HEARD BY LARGE AUDIENCE

The fourth of a series of Evangelistic addresses at the First Christian church delivered by Rev. C. E. Otey of Danville, Va., was given before a large audience Sunday evening. Chairs were used to supplement the benches, in an effort to accommodate the people who heard Rev. Otey.

It was noticed that local churches generally, had large congregations Sunday night.

Few people could be seen on the streets of either city, as such large numbers were attending church.

The large number of automobiles on Moulton street near the First Christian church, indicated what a large crowd would hear the visiting evangelist. The First Christian church attendance has made a very notable advance in the last year or so, many citizens stated at the church Sunday evening.

Following a brief address by the pastor, Rev. Noble R. Edwards, and the singing of the congregation led by the choir with Miss Marie Talley as pianist, Rev. Otey began his address by quoting a number of scripture texts as follows: "If you do good to them who, do good to you, what thank have ye, for even the Pharisees do this." "Except your righteousness exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no wise inherit the kingdom of heaven."

"Well don't thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many things." There are many good people in the world who do not accept Bible teachings," said the preacher, "but they are not Christians."

The rules of conduct supposed to govern Christians, were stated by the use of Bible quotations. The speaker said that the best way to know people is to have dealings with them, that deeds and not words or professions, indicated character.

It was stated by Rev. Edwards, that since the visitor's time here was limited to this week, he hoped the people would not delay in getting out to hear Rev. Otey.

Evangelist Talks To 'Y' Bible Class

The principal speaker at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday morning at the Association Bible class meeting, was Rev. C. E. Otey, an evangelist of Danville, Va.

Rev. Otey was introduced by Rev. Noble R. Edwards, the regular teacher of the class. Before Rev. Otey's address, the business session of the class was held with Thomas Hodson, vice president, presiding.

The musical program, which was greatly enjoyed by the goodly number present, was by Mrs. Frank Morrow, Miss Mary Carden and C. L. Shook. Mr. Shook leading the congregational singing, Miss Carden playing the accompaniments and Mrs. Morrow singing a beautiful solo.

A report was made by the sick and relief committee of which J. R. Johnson is the chairman.

OLD SILVER DOLLAR IS BOUGHT HERE

One of the oldest American dollars in existence bearing date of 1795, was recently purchased here by F. M. Robertson, assistant postmaster of Decatur.

The money is in a fine state of preservation, every letter and symbol appearing distinctly.

The woman on the dollar is exactly the opposite to her modern sisters as regards the cut of her hair, which appears long and flowing.

The face of the woman does not resemble that of the modern "Liberty" girl, either but it is larger and more forceful in appearance.

The eagle is lean in appearance, with his wings slightly raised.

Most Distinctive Difference

The most distinctive difference noticeable between the ancient and modern dollar, is that around the 1795 dollar "edge" appears the words "one dollar, the unit, 100 cents." Between those words appear symbols that are unknown to moderns. No "e pluribus unum" appears on the dollar of Mr. Robertson. The money seems to be some heavier than a regular American dollar.

Dollars several years less ancient than the Robertson dollar are selling at a large premium, notably those of the issue of around 1808, such issue having been lost wholly or almost so, it is said in an out going liner bound for England.

STREET OPENED

Walnut, the first of the near a dozen streets of Decatur to be rebuilt with stone, concrete and asphalt has just been opened to traffic, thus making one more modern drive way, connecting Albany and Decatur.

The base of the new street is 5 inches of rock-concrete, two inches "binder coat," and one inch pure asphalt.

Reports Loss Of $3,200 In Cash On His Way to Athens

F. A. Laubenthal, 1212 Fourth avenue South, a night train inspector on the Louisville and Nashville, has reported to authorities the loss of $3,200 in currency. Mr. Laubenthal said he thought that he lost the amount on Saturday last which he carried in a large envelope with the intention of placing it on savings account in an Athens, Ala., bank.

Taking the money off deposit from the local banks Mr. Laubenthal caught a northbound Louisville and Nashville freight train at the Moulton street crossing and was nearly to Athens before he made the discovery of the loss. The entire amount was in currency ranging from bills of ten dollar denomination to the one hundred variety.

A liberal reward is being offered for the return of the amount.

HIGHT DECLARES HE GAVE THE DOSES TO RELIEVE SUFFERING

Ina Minister Finally Confesses To the Killing of Wife

BREAKS DOWN AT DAWN TODAY

Makes Statements To Questioners Early This Morning

(Associated Press)

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Sept. 22—Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, Ina pastor confessed at 4:10 o'clock this morning to poisoning his wife and Wilbur Sweetin.

In his statement to the authorities Hight declared murder of his wife was prompted to 'relieve her of her suffering.'

According to the statement he placed the poison in her coffee on the morning of September 10. Traces of the same poison in Sweetin's stomach had been found in Mrs. Hight's stomach. In both cases a coroner's jury had attributed this to ptomaine poisoning.

The body of Sweetin was disinterred last Friday and the stomach sent to the Chicago chemist for an analysis. Mrs. Hight's body also was examined for further examination of the vital organs. She died September 12.

Hight was questioned from nine o'clock last night until four this morning before confession of the murder of his wife was obtained. A few minutes later he confessed also to the murder of Sweetin.

He claimed to be temporarily out of his mind at the time. Rev. Hight said he had put poison in Sweetin's water to put him out of pain. This was on the morning of Sunday, July 27, at Sweetin's home where Sweetin lay ill.

Hight declared in his confession that there never had been anything between himself and Mrs. Sweetin and absolved her of any complicity in the crime.

The text of the two confessions follows:

"I, Lawrence M. Hight, of my own free will, voluntarily, without threat or promise and having been fully informed of my rights and what I say may be used against me, make the following statement:

"That, while temporarily beside myself with grief at my wife, Anna Hight's condition, who was suffering intensely and was sure to die, and wishing to save her pain, I put poison in some coffee and gave it to her in the early morning of Wednesday September 10, 1924, while Mrs. Lucy Laur, my daughters, Mary and Mildred Hight were in the kitchen of my home in Ina, Ill., Jefferson County, and my son, Robert Hight was in bed at home.

"That my sole thought was to ease her pain in her dying moments. Signed L. M. Hight."

The second confession follows:

"I, Lawrence M. Hight, of my own free will, voluntarily, without threat or promises and having been fully informed of my rights that what I say may be used against me, makes the following statement:

"That on Sunday morning, July 27, 1924, at the home of Wilbur Sweetin, at Ina, Jefferson County, Illinois, I placed some poison in a glass of water and gave it to Wilbur Sweetin, who drank it. I did it to ease his pain. Elsie Sweetin knew nothing of this and there was never anything between her and myself in any way. Signed Lawrence M. Hight."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of
Revelations of a Wife

What Midge and Katherine Found Out About Mollie.

DESPITE the stress of the moment, I was irresistibly reminded of the Indian stories in which I used to revel as Katherine and I single file hurried down the dark road after Mollie Fawcett's fleeing figure.

Treading in the dust our footsteps were as noiseless as hers, and although we did not much fear her looking around—she was evidently in too desperate a hurry for any delay—I followed Katherine's suggestion to remain close in the shadow of the bushes. Then we would be screened from the sight of whomever she was hurrying to meet, for that she was hastening to some rendezvous was plain.

We reached the outskirts of a quarter-mile from the farm, however, before she halted. We were so close behind her that we heard the frightened, stifled gasp she gave as she abruptly stopped. Mollie, with a stocky but powerful masculine figure, stepped from the shadow of a tree and came toward her. Farther down the road I caught the dim outline of a horse and rider, and it means the stranger had come to meet the girl who was so plainly terrified at his advance.

With infinite caution Katherine and I withdrew into the bushes. A few feet from us there was an opening in the fence enclosing a field next to the farm. Getting through that we were enabled to establish ourselves exactly opposite Mollie, but thoroughly screened from her by a thicket of brambles.

Across the road, swinging the figure of the man, and back against the bushes, the body of a terrified Mollie Fawcett. My hands clenched into fists in the sudden impulse to protect her. I know both Katherine, as well as I, would have dashed through the bushes to her aid, had he touched her, but he stopped when he was within two feet of her, and said roughly:

"Suppose I refuse?"

"Well, you little devil! So you thought you'd better come to meet Papa after all? You realize, don't you, that you can't dodge me, no matter where you go? But I'll admit you gave me a whole lot of trouble, just the same. If I hadn't had a tip, but never mind that—the question is now when are you going to come to terms?"

"What terms?" Mollie faltered woefully.

"What terms?" he repeated with an ironical little laugh. "As if you didn't know, Miss Innocence, but I'll tell you again. My terms. You're to stop this shilly-shallying and putting me off, and tell me just what day you're going to keep the promise you've made me two of 'em, remember! And it's got to be day this week, too. I'm not going to wait a minute longer."

"This week?" The words were hardly more than a terrified breath.

"Yes, this week," he snickered. "Cheer up! When it's once done"

YOUR HEALTH

Don't Neglect Injuries
No Matter How "Trifling"

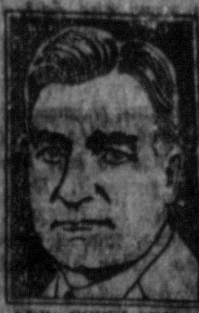

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

A BIG, husky six-footer, a friend of mine, struck a splinter in his finger the other day. His hands were none too clean and the point of the knife he used to remove the offending object was soiled, too.

Young chaps in their twenties scorn the methods recommended by the Red Cross, doctors and other well-informed persons. To them it seems babyish, or at least unnecessary, to give heed to trifling accidents. They trust to their own strength and vigor. "It is all in the day's work," they say.

The next day my young friend had a sore finger. In another twenty-four hours the finger was terribly swollen and very shortly the fine chap was in the hospital.

On the second day, twenty-four hours too late, he was painting his finger with iodine. But what good did that do them? By this time the germs and poisons were everywhere in his system.

There are several pus-producing germs. Some are polite germs. They never force their way past the entrance, or at least past the entrance hall. They may fume around there, but the main structure of the body is rarely the object of their attack. There are other germs which need not the thickest covering. They sneak into the system and overrun its whole structure, poisoning tissues and blood.

There is an old saying that "what is one man's meat is another man's poison." It is like that with our susceptibility to germs. One person may be as unaffected by a certain germ as he would be by a drop of water. Another person may suffer serious poisoning and even death by the admission of this particular germ through a very small cut.

It all depends on what we call the "resistance" of the body. This power varies, but if there is even a slight weakness, there is danger if the wrong germ appears.

You see, you don't know what your resistance is and therefore it is unwise to take a chance. On this account every injury, no matter how trifling, should be treated with respect.

A three-per-cent solution of iodine should be in every household and wherever people work. If there is an accident with a break of the skin, apply the iodine at once.

Then, if it is a splinter or a deep cut, wash your hands with soap and water, getting them as clean as possible. Apply the iodine again and with a sterile cloth which has been boiled or passed through a match flame, the splinter can be removed. Then make a further application of the iodine and wrap the part in clean linen or gauze.

Don't fumble with your health and life.

amination. Consult your family physician.

D. F. C. Q.—My legs bend backwards. Is there anything I can do to remedy this condition?

A.—An operation may effect a cure. However, I would advise you to consult an orthopedic surgeon for an examination and treatment.

J. L. Q.—My front teeth on the upper part of my mouth protrude slightly. What causes this and what can I do?

A.—This is natural. See a dentist and he may be able to straighten them for you by adjusting the proper braces.

M. E. R. Q.—My eyes are under a constant strain as though I were looking toward my nose and they feel as though they were bulging or being pressed outward. I also experience severe pain in my head above my eyes and in the back of my head. My glasses are said to fit me perfectly—what would you suggest?

A.—Since your glasses are correct the trouble may come from a source other than your eyes. I would suggest that you have your blood pressure taken and this may show up the cause of the strain in your head. Also make sure that you have no sinus condition which might be responsible.

W. H. Q.—How can one disinfect a room where a patient died of tuberculosis? Is there danger in handling articles in such a room?

A.—Open all the windows and let the direct sunlight pour in. Wash all the walls and furniture with a carbolic solution and boil all bedding and hangings. If they cannot be boiled it would be best to dispose of them by burning them. Such articles as books, etc. if not of value should be destroyed.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT A Well-Balanced Loser

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

MOTHER showed me the letter the other day—such an amazing letter.

But then, it was from an amazing woman, so after all—

"Don't fret about me and my third marriage," said the letter. "You say I'm a poor picker and you dread my third choice."

"Now, don't you worry about that. I don't think I'm such a poor picker, as results go."

"Poor Dick wasn't anything in particular, to be sure—but neither was I when I married him."

"I was just a silly, emotional, romantic, inexperienced girl, and he was just exactly the high flower, romantic, conceited, impractical, inexperienced boy that belonged to me."

"I won't deny that it was a good deal of a relief to me when I finally realized that poor Dick was really through with his worries and his indiscretions and his follies—as far as this world was concerned."

"I grew—and he didn't, and things might have been tragic for us if we'd had to keep on."

"But I chose right—when I was choosing."

"Now, as to Tom, my second choice. Tom certainly turned out pretty badly. He couldn't be faithful even to Cleopatra, not if he tried—and he never even tried."

"I'm Not Sorry I Picked Tom."

"Easy going, shiftless, irresponsible—dear me, I'm sorry for Tom's second! I hear she's young and pretty. Poor thing, I wonder how long it will take her to wake up."

"Now, as for Tom and me—that's a different story."

"When I married Tom I was nearly thirty years old. I knew the world—or thought I did—I'd met all kinds of men, and I thought that Tom was the one man on earth for me—and he was—when I married him."

"He was, for that matter, for ten long years."

"I didn't care how shiftless he was, or how easy going. I didn't care if he was lacking in ambition. I was crazy about Tom."

"And he was crazy about me, and he was the greatest sweetheart in the world."

"Who but Tom knew exactly when to give you a flower and when to read you a bit of verse, and when to have a nice little lover's quarrel—oh, Tom was the perfect husband for me when I was twenty-eight and up to the time when I was about thirty-six. I think I was the perfect wife for him, too—he said so, anyhow, and I believe he meant it."

"Oh, yes; it was bitter when I had to give him up—but I've had ten years, or nearly ten years, of almost perfect happiness. How many women who are good 'pickers' can say as much?"

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young woman twenty-six years and have two children. I have a good husband. He works in town every day and I stay at home with the children, but am getting so tired of doing this, I would like to move to town close to my husband's work.

Now could you advise how I could get him to go? DIMPLES.

DIMPLES: You are a very foolish woman. Here you have a good husband, a home and two children and you are starting dissension in your home by trying to persuade your husband to move to the city. There is nothing like the country for bringing up children. Living conditions in town are much more difficult and expenses are much greater.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two young girls, both aged seventeen. Can you tell us what kind of girls boys like? We have both been brought up in very respectable homes, and have very few boy friends. However, we have observed that girls who are more free and who have not such nice homes, have many followers.

How can this be accounted for? People tell us that boys like to play with wild girls, but when it comes to anything more serious choose the quieter ones. We want to play, too. What can we do? BLUE & GRAY.

BLUE and GRAY: The fact that you come from nice homes ought to attract the young men instead of keeping them away.

Winifred Black

"I'm not sorry I picked Tom. I'm glad of it. I wouldn't have missed him for the world, and I wouldn't live under the same roof with him again for twenty-four hours nor for thousands of dollars and all the perils in between."

"Marry again? Why, yes, of course, if I can find the right man. I'm thirty-eight now, and the man I marry must have two yachts and four motor cars. He must have a house on the south side of Washington Square and a camp in the Adirondacks, and a winter home in Florida or California."

She Knows What She Wants.

"And he must speak at least three languages and write and read four or five. He must know pictures and books and plays and interior decoration; he must know a horse and a dog and be an all-round athlete. He must love children and love home, and yet be an accomplished mixer. He must be young enough to like fun and old enough to have sense—when I find a man like that, maybe—"

I wonder if she would have been really happier if poor Dick had lived and she had made the best of him and of her life and helped him to grow, and grown with him—"

Well, I'm glad the settlement of marriages, either in the beginning or in the end, is not exactly my affair. Don't you feel that way?

How to Make an Oily Skin More Beautiful

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

No woman can be beautiful without a good complexion, and certainly every woman owes it to herself to make her complexion as attractive as it can be.

The real beautifying measures must come from well-planned helpful care, for no real beauty can result from covering a mediocre complexion with powder and cosmetics. These things all have their proper place, but try to make your complexion itself attractive before you use cosmetics upon it.

As I have said before, real beauty must come from within and not from without. For instance, your system must be in the best possible condition if your skin is to show the healthful clearness that goes into the making of real beauty.

You must eat green vegetables and lettuce and such beautifying things, and you must chew your food thoroughly. You must drink plenty of water, and you must apply water outside as freely as within.

By this I mean to stress the importance of the daily bath, for it has been aptly called the cornerstone of true beauty.

Now there are special needs that come to different skins with the various seasons. For instance, some complexions are inclined to appear greasy or oily, especially in hot weather. Then again, other skins show this tendency even in cool weather. The woman who suffers from this ailment will want a special lotion to overcome it, and here is one that she will find excellent indeed:

Rosewater 5½ ounces
Alcohol ½ ounce
Boric acid ¼ dram

This lotion is cleansing, cooling and drying. You can use it to bathe your face in twice a day, or oftener, according to your special needs.

While the skin that does suffer from this tendency even in cool weather, the woman who suffers from this ailment will want a special lotion to overcome it, and here is one that she will find excellent indeed:

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young woman twenty-six years and have two children. I have a good husband. He works in town every day and I stay at home with the children, but am getting so tired of doing this, I would like to move to town close to my husband's work.

Now could you advise how I could get him to go? DIMPLES.

DIMPLES: You are a very foolish woman. Here you have a good husband, a home and two children and you are starting dissension in your home by trying to persuade your husband to move to the city. There is nothing like the country for bringing up children. Living conditions in town are much more difficult and expenses are much greater.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two young girls, both aged seventeen. Can you tell us what kind of girls boys like? We have both been brought up in very respectable homes, and have very few boy friends. However, we have observed that girls who are more free and who have not such nice homes, have many followers.

How can this be accounted for? People tell us that boys like to play with wild girls, but when it comes to anything more serious choose the quieter ones. We want to play, too. What can we do? BLUE & GRAY.

BLUE and GRAY: The fact that you come from nice homes ought to attract the young men instead of keeping them away.

How to Make an Oily Skin More Beautiful

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

No woman can be beautiful without a good complexion, and certainly every woman owes it to herself to make her complexion as attractive as it can be.

The real beautifying measures must come from well-planned helpful care, for no real beauty can result from covering a mediocre complexion with powder and cosmetics. These things all have their proper place, but try to make your complexion itself attractive before you use cosmetics upon it.

As I have said before, real beauty must come from within and not from without. For instance, your system must be in the best possible condition if your skin is to show the healthful clearness that goes into the making of real beauty.

You must eat green vegetables and lettuce and such beautifying things, and you must chew your food thoroughly. You must drink plenty of water, and you must apply water outside as freely as within.

By this I mean to stress the importance of the daily bath, for it has been aptly called the cornerstone of true beauty.

Now there are special needs that come to different skins with the various seasons. For instance, some complexions are inclined to appear greasy or oily, especially in hot weather. Then again, other skins show this tendency even in cool weather. The woman who suffers from this ailment will want a special lotion to overcome it, and here is one that she will find excellent indeed:

Rosewater 5½ ounces
Alcohol ½ ounce
Boric acid ¼ dram

OLIVE EULOGIZES
WORLD IDEALISTS

Before a large congregation at the Southside Baptist church Sunday, the pastor, Rev. E. Floyd Olive, eulogized the world's dreamers and idealists. The names of Abraham who "had a vision of Jehovah, of the apostle Paul who saw a new vision on the Damascus road, of Christ Himself, and of many great modern inventors were called by the preacher in the course of an eloquent and forceful sermon. "Our modern world, of commerce and industry would be impossible, but for dreamers declared Rev. Olive.

The following are excerpts taken from the sermon: "Idealists and dreamers have ever been the world's greatest benefactors. From the Biblical and from profane history, this fact is repeatedly illustrated.

Every improvement in the material and industrial world, and every reform and advancement in the social, moral and religious realm have been made, in a large measure as the result of the visions and dreams of idealists.

Though they have been often opposed, persecuted and punished, idealists are the world's greatest benefactors because they have persisted in dreaming until their dreams came true.

But for the visions and dreams of such men as James Watt, Robt. Fulton, Eli Whitney, S. F. B. Morse, Alexander Graham Bell, Westinghouse, the Wright Bros. and Marconi the commerce and industry of our day would be an absolute impossibility.

In the moral and religious realm our greatest benefits and blessings are the results of the visions and dreams of idealists. The vision of religious freedom impelled the Pilgrim fathers to seek America and eventually to establish a government where every man could worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. Time would fail me to tell of the visions and dreams of others who have wrought so well.

Let us turn to our Bible, that book of such glorious visions and dreams and we find abundant corroboration of our statement, that the world's greatest benefactors have ever been the men of visions and dreams.

For instance Abraham had a vision of Jehovah, and through him "all the families of the earth have been blessed." The apostle Paul had a vision of the Damascus road of the crucified, resurrected and glorified Christ, which changed his whole life and the course of human history. It is when men catch a vision of the Christ that Paul served that they begin to live the Christian life.

The Lord Jesus Christ was and is the world's greatest idealist, therefore He is the world's greatest benefactor. It was His vision and dreams of a redeemed world that inspired Him to endure the cross, despising the shame, in order to bring salvation to sinners.

If you have a mortgage on your home or farm I will show you in a very short time how it can be lifted. To the boy or girl who wishes to go to college but cannot because papa is not able I will show you how you can send them. You will be surprised how you can do all these things on such small amounts. Now this is no idle dream for I am dealing in proven facts. I have proven it to the people of this city who are your neighbors and friends. Now I want you to make an investment in this proposition. I have. Why? Because I can show you where every dollar you invest will pay you the very biggest dividends. In fact I can prove to you that every dollar you invest will pay you 100 per cent dividends a month. Now surely you will investigate this. Often I have made this broad statement. See if I am dealing in facts or not. All I ask is for you to see me and I will convince you. JACK ADAIR, ON FIRST VISIT HERE,
LIKES LOOKS OF THE TWIN CITIES

JACK ADAIR

Jack Adair, one of the South's popular black-face comedians, who opens a week's engagement Monday at the Princess theater, on this, his first visit to the Twin Cities, finds much to like in Albany-Decatur, he declared today after having spent part of Sunday here following the arrival of the company from Richmond, Va.

"I enjoy getting into a new city, for they all have such different characteristics," Adair declared Monday at rehearsal at the Princess. "In all of my sojourning around the country, I don't believe I have ever found any two communities just alike. Most cities have something that attracts the stranger and most of them have something which is not so attractive.

Football Season Opens This Week
At Central; Decatur Works Hard

Coach Webb is battling daily now with the Central football hopes in an attempt to round to form for the end of the week melee that is scheduled to occur although the rival aggregation has not yet been named. Although greatly handicapped with a lack of promising material the Central mentor has not been hindered to any great extent with injuries. Thus far the jinx of old man injury is still in the background where he spent most of the 1922-23 season. It is pointed to proudly by followers of Central football antics that only on one occasion last year was time called for a Central man, that when Gustin sustained a broken ankle in the Coffee high game, the conditioning of the men of last years' club was superb.

The schedule has not yet been completely mapped out and for that reason none of the games have been announced. It is known however that a number of the receivers of overwhelming defeats of last year are yelling for an opportunity to get back and regain in some measure the prestige that was lost last season when the 85 and 98 point beatings were being handed out.

Over at Riverside high Coach Grimes is working out a similar problem in the lack of material that has reported thus far. Grimes has spared his charges little of the joy of preliminary training in refusing to allow them the use of pads in the pre-season scrimmages. Coach Grimes has likewise been fortunate in not having other than minor injuries show up among the men trying out for regular berths. No schedule has yet been announced for the season.

SYNOPSIS

Sir Oliver Trevelyan, renowned for his exploits on the Spanish Main, is betrothed to Rosamund Godolphin; but because of personal enmity moving out of land disputes the marriage is opposed by both Rosamund's brother, Peter, and her guardian, Sir John Killigrew. After his defeat by Sir Oliver in a duel Sir John's antagonism is somewhat lessened; whereas Peter becomes increasingly bitter. In a drunken rage one day, in the presence of Rosamund, Peter and his friends, a group of villagers, Peter kills Oliver, strikes him with his whip, and threatening further punishment, rides off. Oliver, uttering a threat to kill him, starts in furious pursuit. But good judgment masters his temper. Rosamund, he realizes, would never forgive him were Peter hanged at his hands. For her sake, therefore, he must restrain his anger. To avoid further embroilment with Peter he decides to leave the village.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Whether he would go he did not then determine. He might repair to London, and he might even go upon another cruise—an idea which he had lately dismissed under Rosamund's earnest intercession. But it was imperative that he should quit the neighborhood, and place a distance between Peter Godolphin and himself until such time as he might later Rosamund to wife.

The resolve was firmly implanted in him by the time he reached Penarrow, and he felt himself uplifted by it and by the promise it afforded him that thus his future happiness would be assured.

Himself he stabled his horse; for of the two grooms he kept, one had by his leave set out yesterday to spend Christmas in Devon with his parents, the other had taken a chill and had been ordered to bed that very day by Sir Oliver, who was considerate with those that served him.

In the dining-room he found supper spread, and a great log fire blazing in the enormous cowed fireplace, diffusing a pleasant warmth through the vast room and flickering ruddily upon the trophies of weapons that adorned the walls, upon the tapestries and the portraits of dead Trevellyans. Hearing his step, old Nicholas entered bearing a great candlebranch which he set upon the table.

"You're late, Sir Oliver," said the old man, "and Master Lionel hasn't come yet neither."

Sir Oliver grunted and scowled, as he crunched a log and set it sizzling under his wet heel. He thought of Malpas and cursed Lionel's folly, as, without a word, he loosed his cloak and hung it on an oaken coffer by the wall where already he had cast his hat. When he sat down, and Nicholas came forward to draw off his boots.

When that was done and the old servant stood up again, Sir Oliver shortly bade him to serve supper. "Master Lionel can't be long now," said he. "And give me to drink, Nick. 'Tis what I most require."

"I've brewed ee a posset of canary sack," announced Nicholas; "there's no better supping of a frosty winter's night, Sir Oliver."

He departed to return presently with a black jack that was steaming fragrantly. He found his master still in the same attitude, staring at the fire, and frowning darkly. Sir Oliver's thoughts were still of his brother and Malpas, and so he was considering whether it was not his duty, after all, to attempt a word of remonstrance. At length he rose with a sigh and got to table. There he bethought him of his sick groom, and asked Nicholas for news of him. Nicholas reported the fellow to be much as he had been, whereupon Sir Oliver took up a cup and hummed it with the steaming posset.

"Take him that," he said. "There's no better medicine for such an ailment."

Outside fell a clatter of hoofs. "Here he Master Lionel at last," said the servant.

"No doubt," agreed Sir Oliver. "No need to stay for him. Here is all he needs. Carry that to Tom ere it cools."

It was his object to procure the servant's absence when Lionel should arrive, resolved as he was to greet him with a sound rapping for his folly.

He took a deep draft of the posset, and as he set it down he heard

Lionel's step without. Then the door was flung open, and his brother stood on the threshold a moment at gaze.

Sir Oliver looked round with a scowl, the well-considered reproof already on his lips.

"So—," he began, and got no further. The sight that met his eyes drove the ready words from his lips and mind; instead it was with a sharp gasp of dismay that he came immediately to his feet.

"Lionel!" Lionel looked in, closed the door and shot home one of his bolts. Then he leaned against it, facing his brother again. He was deathly pale, with great dark stains under his eyes; his ungloved right hand was pressed to his side, and the fingers of it were all smeared with blood that was still oozing and dripping from between them. Over his yellow doublet on the right side there was a spreading dark stain whose nature did not intrigue Sir Oliver a moment.

"My God!" he cried, and ran to his brother.

"What happened, Lal? Who has done this?" "Peter Godolphin," came the answer from lips that writhed in a curious smile.

Never a word said Sir Oliver, but he set his teeth and clenched his hands until the nails cut into his palms. Then he put an arm about this lad he loved above all save one in the whole world, and with anguish in his mind he supported him forward to the fire. There Lionel dropped to the chair that Sir Oliver had lately occupied.

"What is y—?" "Has it gone deep?" he asked, in terror almost.

"'Tis naught—a flesh wound; but I have lost a morsel of blood. I thought I should have been drained or ever I got me home."

With fearful speed Sir Oliver drew his dagger and ripped away doublet, vest and shirt, laying bare the lad's white flesh. A moment's examination, and he breathed more freely.

"Art a very dabe, Lal," he cried in his relief. "To ride without thought to staunch so simple a wound, and so lose all this blood—bad Trevellyan blood though it be."

He laughed in the immensity of his reaction from that momentary terror.

"Stay thou there whilst I call Nick to help us dress this scratch." "No, no!" There was note of sudden fear in the lad's voice, and his hand clutched at his brother's sleeve. "Nick must not know. None must know, or I am undone else."

Sir Oliver stared, bewildered. Lionel smiled again that curious twisted, rather frightened smile.

"I gave better than I took, Noll," said he. "Master Godolphin is as cold by now as the snow on which I left him."

His brother's sudden start and the fixed stare from out of his slowly paling face scared Lionel a little. He observed, almost subconsciously, the dull red wheel that came into prominence as the color faded out of Sir Oliver's face, yet never thought to ask how it came there. His own affairs possessed him too completely.

"What's this?" quoth Oliver at last, hoarsely.

Lionel dropped his eyes, unable longer to meet a glance that was becoming terrible.

"We would have it," he growled almost sullenly, answering the reproach that was written in every line of his brother's taut body. "I had warned him not to cross my path. But tonight I think some madness had seized upon him. He affronted me, Noll; he said things which it was beyond human power to endure, and—"

He shrugged to complete his sentence.

"Well, well," said Oliver in a small voice. "First let us tend this wound of yours."

"Do not call Nick," was the other's swift admonition. "Don't you see, Noll?" he explained in answer to the inquiry of his brother's stare, "don't you see that we fought there almost in the dark and without witnesses. It—" he swallowed—"it will be called murder, fair fight though it was; and should it be discovered that it was I—"

He shivered and his glance grew wild; his lips twitched.

"I see," said Oliver, who understood at last, and he added bitterly, "You fool!"

"I had no choice," protested Lionel. "He came at me with his drawn sword. Indeed, I think he was half-drunk. I warned him of what must happen to the other did either of us fall, but he bade me not concern myself with the fear of any such consequences to himself. He was full of foul words of me and you and all who ever bore our name. He struck me with the flat of his blade and threatened to run me through as I stood unless I drew to defend myself. What choice had I? I did not mean to kill him—as God's my witness, I did not, Noll."

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanné Price

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—It is not yet against the law for a man to "roll his eyes" at a woman, at least not in this state. We grow fairly strict in our bans, among others those on flirting but a rolling eye is still within the law. So the magistrate in night court announced when a youth was brought before him with that charge against him. His woman accuser came to court, too, to present in full her case against him, but as "rolling his eyes" at her was the limit of her accusations, the young man was dismissed.

Earrings grow gayer and more dramatic and exotic looking. The latest I have noticed on the avenue are of diamond hoops—large in circumference although small as to diamonds—with swinging parrots of garnets hanging within them. It hardly seems as if we could be growing wholly dull and ultra-civilized while such ornaments as that swing from our ears.

It is not only Russians of former importance in their own country who have come over here to establish restaurants and dancing clubs. In our uptown Turkish quarter, which is along Seventh avenue, right close to the Pennsylvania station is an eating place which, I suppose, comes from Constantinople itself. The musicians are a quartet who truly did perform before Abdul Hamid, the Red Sultan and the chief is no less a personage than Osman Bekir-in-Oghlou, chef of the private cuisine to his late majesty, Sultan Mehmed V.

After these several seasons, war plays seem to be coming into a second life. Running close race with the biggest hits of the season past is "Havoc" imported to us from England. The war serves as background for a love drama in this instance but a vital background and actually considerably more than that. Joyce Barbour and Leo G. Carroll and Richard Bird are all deserving of particular honors for their work.

One thinks of the Stock Exchange as being educational—but only to the hopeful ones who stake their fortunes there. It runs, however, one of the extensive and intensive schools for boys in this city and one which looks close to thoroughness and results. The office boys, messengers and

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924; and WHEREAS, Notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, and in the manner, form and place required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

"Article —, Section 1. The County of Walker, State of Alabama, shall have power to levy and collect a special county road tax not exceeding fifty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property, in such county in addition to that now authorized or that may hereafter be authorized for public road purposes; provided, that of such tax, the time it is to continue and the purpose thereof shall have been first submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the county, and voted for by a majority of those voting at such election. Section 2. Twenty-five per centum of all moneys derived from property lying within municipalities and arising from the tax proposed herein, shall be paid to such municipality and shall, by it, be expended for upkeep of its streets. Section 3. The Court of County Commissioners, board of revenue, or other governing body of said county, may, or upon written petition of ten per centum of the qualified voters of Walker County, shall call and submit said election provided for and authorized by section one hereto to the qualified electors of Walker County either at the time of the general election or at a special election called for that purpose; provided, that said election shall be called and held in accordance with the law now or that may be enacted governing county bond elections, and in conformity with the general election laws of the State."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

life. Even now, and here in New York it still raises its head every little while. The tenement districts are its most fruitful ground, and we have just had the instance of one Mrs. Rosa Spesano who paid $7,000 to a "witch" to save her husband's life. When the seven thousand was gone, the incanting one told her the case was hopeless and the man died. The courts are endeavoring to get back Mrs. Spesano's $7,000, but even yet her faith in the mystic rites keeps her from complaining; too bitterly against the woman who got it. "He was ill from sources put upon him by unfriendly neighbors," insists the sorceress and swears that it was because her directions were not carried out completely in regard to burning all of his underclothing that she was unsuccessful in her efforts.

BEYREUTH FESTIVAL NEEDS NEW SETTINGS SAYS CRITICS

BEYREUTH—There is much speculation as to whether the Wagner Festival revived this year, will be continued beyond the death of Frau Cosima Wagner, widow of the noted composer. The World War and the ten years of darkness it brought to the Wagner Festival theater have brought changes in the artistic as well as the economic and social world.

Performances of the Wagner operas which were acceptable on the old-fashioned stage of the Bayreuth opera house ten years ago, very clearly do not satisfy today. There is a demand now for new scenery, new stage machinery, new methods of production.

Admitting the excellence of the orchestra and the adequate singing of the chorus and the principals in most of the offerings this year at Bayreuth, many critics and chiefly German critics at that, express the opinion that the opera houses in Berlin, Dresden and Munich, with their adequate modern stages, offer better productions of the Wagnerian operas than Bayreuth affords.

You have to pay a good salesman a neat salary. Do you consider newspaper advertising a salesman? Then make out a monthly appropriation for newspaper advertising and watch the sales grow.

Japan Sinks Old Warship Once Unit of Russian Navy

TOKIO—Stirring events of 19 years ago were recalled recently by the sinking off Yokosuka of the old battleship Iwama doomed under the Washington Naval treaty. The old sea fighter was used as a target for practice by the naval air forces. Six bombing planes took part, sending the Iwama to the bottom in less time than was anticipated.

It was expected that the Iwama would provide two days' practice for the bombers and naval attaches of foreign countries were invited to witness the second day's operations. The invitations, however, were recalled because the Iwama was sent to the bottom the first day.

The Iwama, formerly the Russian battleship Orel, was a unit of the Baltic fleet. She survived the battle of the Sea of Japan, May 27, 1905, only to be captured by Admiral Togo's fleet. As a unit of the Japanese fleet the Iwama took part in 1914 in the operations, which cleared the Pacific of German raiders.

Owners of Florida soft drink emporiums have decided that northern tourists do not like the attitude of the "jazzy" table boys, who were wont to repeat an order for lemonade as "squeeze two" or an order for egg malted milk as "wreck a couple and twist 'em in brown." Inasmuch as northern tourists create a profound impression on Florida's commercial life, the day of the jazzy soda jerker is doomed. He will be replaced by the sedate young man who will call lemonade by its right and original name.

Fame may be fleeting, but sometime is continues too long. William H. Anderson, former Anti-Saloon League executive in New York, who was sent to prison, complained that guards were pointing him out to visitors. He found his fame obnoxious and guards no longer will be permitted to tell visitors who he is.

This is a great world of give and take. Officers discovered that some of the ships in the rum fleet off the coast were distilling their own spirits and selling the beverages to American bootleggers as rare old bottled in bond "stuff." Its hard, however, to "put anything over" on Americans. It wasn't long before the American buyers discovered the lack of familiarity of the rum runners with United States currency. It was but another step, and a quick one, to provide the buyers with ample rolls of counterfeit money, with which they paid the Britishers for their counterfeit whisky.

People who give serious thought to the various conflicts which arise from time to time between the large employers of labor and those who are the employees of the large employes, will find much to reflect on in the present effort of the engineers' organization, which owns some West Virginia coal mines, with the miners who have been working them.

The engineers, finding themselves with surplus capital on hand, did just as organizations and individuals have done before them—they invested their capital. Thus the engineers entered the employing class and in due course of events, the apparently insoluble question of wages came up for settlement.

The manner in which these two big labor organizations iron out their difficulties may give the nation some worthwhile suggestions on how similar disputes may be ended.

It is time for the voters to give some thought to figures in connection with the presidential contest. It should not escape their attention that while the managers of the Coolidge campaign seek to create the impression that the sentiment of the country is toward their candidate, they at the same time are discussing the situation in the event that the election may be thrown into the house of representatives. A party that is confident of its strength with the people does not admit of any possibility that the contest may go to the house.

What are the conditions? The Republican party has not in fact had a majority in the Sixty-eighth Congress, and it is an axiom of American politics that a party which fails to secure such a majority in the middle of an administration cannot win the succeeding presidential election. The Sixty-eighth Congress has been largely controlled by a combination of Democrats and Progressive Republicans, and the latter, today, have their own presidential candidate. There is a Republican split today same as in 1912.

It is significant that all the states conceded to the Independent Republican presidential candidate, LaFollette, are normally Republican. As LaFollette has operated within the Republican party for more than 30 years, it is but reasonable to assume that his independent candidacy now will draw chiefly from it in every state. Obviously this will help the Democratic party in states where it and the Republican normally are close in strength.

In the recent state election in Maine the Republican plurality in the governorship contest was cut in half by the Democrats compared with the 1920 vote. Such a change in the percentages of the vote between the two parties throughout the country would, according to Chairman Shaver, give the Democrats a clean sweep. And that reduction of the Republican plurality in Maine was accomplished under conditions in which the so-called third party did not figure at all, the LaFollette wing having no candidates in the state contests.

As for the political sentiment of the country, it is not to be overlooked that, in addition to the fact that the Republican party has lost its majority in congress, 27 of the 48 states, including the largest, have Democratic governors. Although governorship contests may not turn on national issues, they show in this case that the Democratic party has come back strong after its defeat in 1920. In addition to adding to its record of service in the states the Democratic party also is credited with leadership in congress for tax reduction and a number of other popular measures.—Selma Times-Journal.

Health Officer Is Twin City Visitor

Dr. W. S. Welch, of Montgomery, chairman of the Alabama board of health was here Saturday enroute home from the Madison County fair. Dr. Welch as ranking health officer of the state, inspected the work of the Madison County health unit as now directed by Dr. B. F. Austin, former Morgan County health officer. Dr. Welch stated he wanted all people interested in good health to know that the Madison County health unit forces were going into not just a few, but into every beat of Madison county and ministering to the needs of school children and the sick, especially those having infectious diseases.

BIG NIGHT AT KIWANIS

Tuesday evening was a big event in Kiwanis circles. It was "song" night and Marvin Rankin and a bunch of the best singers in the Morgan Kiwanis from Decatur-Albany came over eight of them, and the Kiwanis club room rang with sweet melodies.

The following Kiwanians came over to assist in directing the Athens club singing: W. W. Fussell, president of the Morgan Kiwanis; Marvin Rankin, secretary, J. R. Daniel, H. E. Davis, J. C. White, T. M. Dix, T. Z. Bailey and J. W. Clifton. These gentlemen are all classed as fine singers. "Marvelous" Rankin is entitled to the name that has been given him. He is "marvelous" in that he is full of the qualities that make for high-class entertainment. He is a good leader, he knows many interesting songs. He sings well and has the ability to get others interested. He gave the local Kiwanians a good deal of pleasure by the local lines applicable to several prominent members of the local club. He sang suitable verses of his own composition about the following: Clements, W. H. Johnson and others that all enjoyed.

The visiting Kiwanians were made heartily welcome. They left a good impression. They were wanted back again. Mr. Dix made a beautiful talk of three or four minutes that touched the tenderest cords in the hearts of every one present.

The visiting gentlemen expressed themselves as having had a mighty good dinner. If they really did, we hope they come for another "night of it."

Mr. Huston of the Huston Ford Co. is a new member. He was heartily welcomed.

The ladies of one of the Methodist circles served the dinner which was plentiful and delicious.

The program committee selected Col. Clements to make a ten minute talk on the Constitution and it was brim full of interest and delivered in the Colonel's usual forceful and interesting manner and was appreciated by all.—Alabama Courier.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama, at a session held in 1923, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election in November, 1924, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William W. Brandon, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election in November, 1924, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following amendment to the Constitution of Alabama: viz: "Proposed Amendment No. 290, Mobile County may become indebted and may issue bonds for the construction or improvement of concrete or better than concrete surfaced public roads, and concrete or better than concrete public bridges in said county, and for the construction of bridges and roadways necessary to provide a public road for vehicular travel between the highlands of Mobile and Baldwin Counties; in an amount not to exceed six and one-half per centum of the assessed value of the property situated in Mobile County. To pay said indebtedness and the interest thereon, Mobile County may levy and collect an annual tax on said property not to exceed one-half of one per centum of said value. The indebtedness, the bonds and the tax authorized hereby shall be in addition to those authorized by the Constitution of Alabama prior to the adoption of this amendment. But no such additional indebtedness shall be created, and no such additional bonds shall be issued, and no such additional tax shall be levied, until each improvement or construction proposed to be built thereby, its approximate location, estimated cost and time of completion, and the amount of the proposed increase, shall have been determined upon and made public by the Board of Revenue and Road Commissioners of Mobile County, and the proposed increase of indebtedness or issue of bonds or tax therefor shall have been first authorized by a majority vote by ballot of the qualified voters of Mobile County voting upon such proposition."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this, the 8th day of August, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-Four.

BLACK AND WHITE BRING CONTRAST FOR SEASON OF BRILLIANT COLORS

SEASONS may come, and seasons may go, each with its special color—but the fashion of black and white goes on forever.

There are seasons when it is more chic to be seen in black and white than others, but it is always smart. And there are those women who can affect it with effective results. For instance, the piquant Jetta Goudal. Black-haired, white-skinned, and with a sparkling personality, her type is the essence of chic when gowned in black and white. Knowing this, she has chosen many black and white things for wear in the Paramount picture, "Open All Night," in which she has just completed a featured role.

One of her most striking costumes is shown in the photo above. It has many fashionable notes. First, it has postresque quality in the design of huge white flowers against a black field. It is a tunic—a seven-eighths length tunic at that. It has the Directoire note in the collar, is sleeveless and has a little white vestee. It is worn over a black satin slip. What more could be expected of one little gown? Its smartness is seven-fold.

This costume is finished off with a chic black velvet hat, sans trimming; pearl earrings and a string of pearl beads. At the wrist an exquisite bit of a black lace handkerchief.

The sketch at the lower right hand corner shows a black and white Spanish shawl, also a part of Miss Goudal's wardrobe. In a season when all Spanish shawls are popular, the black and white ones are considered the smartest.

Another black and white fad, which is very new and rather amusing, is that of the pearl earrings, where one pearl is a large round white one, and the other is a large round black one. These should be accompanied by a small choker of alternate black and white pearls, as large and as round as one can purchase.

A smart fur coat, in black and white, is shown in the photo. This fur coat is straight lined and has a Directoire note in its collar, and is possessed of the newest of fur sleeves—the "muff" sleeve. This sleeve explains itself in the sketch. A slanting patch pocket adds an unusual accent.

ECZEMA

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

MANY people imagine that eczema or better needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may, permanent relief will never be theirs until the disease laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.

We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red blood cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red blood cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin itching torture, and its soul-tearing, unrelenting itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go when the tide of blood cells begins to roll in! Blood cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.

S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red blood cells, it rids eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

PERSONS PROMINENT IN NEWS OF THE DAY.

Below: LORD BEAVERBROOK & MALCOLM MAC DONALD.

Alfred E. Smith, Governor of New York, definitely has told his friends he will not again run for the office. Personal finances, he said, are too low. Lord Beaverbrook, through his newspaper, Daily Standard, in London, has kicked up considerable of a furor over the acceptance of $50,000 pounds' worth of stock in a biscuit company by Ramsay MacDonald, Premier of Great Britain. Peter J. Brady, president of the Federation Bank of New York and a delegate from the American Federation of Labor to the British Trade Union convention, said on his return from England that labor unions in that country are quite efficient and do not lag behind Americans. Malcolm Mac Donald, son of Ramsay MacDonald, British Premier, is in the United States to take a course at the University of Pittsburgh.

Coercion Is Denied By 'Star Witness' Of Senate's Probe

"I am only casually acquainted with Mr. Means. How could he know anything about my testimony. I did not say anything under coercion. No one forced me to go to Washington."

Means' repudiation was made public here yesterday by Mr. Daugherty in connection with a letter sent to John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate. The former Attorney General severely criticized Mr. Davis for referring to alleged misconduct of my administration without first learning the facts.

Copies of Means' repudiation were sent Mr. Davis with the letter.

Means declared in his statement that all testimony he gave before the senate committee was prompted by Senator Wheeler and declared that the Montana knew the testimony was untrue.

"I testified what I did before the committee only after a friend had told me that Daugherty had said 'Means can go to hell,' Means statement said.

He declared the beginning of his relations with Senator Wheeler was prompted by a desire to obtain information as to what the senate committee was doing regarding its investigation of the Attorney General's department, in order that he might advise Daugherty.

"Up until the day I took the stand," the statement said, "I was getting information to furnish the Attorney General's department. When I was told that Daugherty had said that I could go to hell, I testified to what I did."

Means declared that he had in his possession information which would prove that his testimony was untrue and could submit physical evidence to further substantiate his statements. "The testimony against Daugherty was all a tissue of lies," he said.

COLUMBUS, O. Sept. 22.—Repudiation as a tissue of lies of all that he told the senate committee in its investigation of the administration of Harry M. Daugherty as attorney general has been made in a signed statement by Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent and star witness for the Daugherty investigators, according to a copy of a statement made public at his home here Sunday by Mr. Daugherty.

The Means statement was incorporated in a letter sent by Mr. Daugherty to John W. Davis, the democratic nominee for President, in which the former Attorney General takes the candidate to task for statements which Daugherty's letter says Davis has made in addresses throughout the country, "suggesting improper conduct by me in my official capacity."

The letter was dated September 19. Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, prosecutor of the committee, now Vice Presidential candidate on the LaFollette ticket, is charged in the Means' statement with having "put this tissue of lies into the mouth of Means" and the majority of other witnesses.

"These witnesses and myself were persuaded to make these false state-
